LAYING OF TIES BEGAN YESTERDAY

Western Pacific Now Building From Jordan River to Sixth West.

TRACK-LAYING WILL FOLLOW IMMEDIATELY

Four Hundred Tons of Rails Now on Ground and More Arriving.

The laying of ties commenced on the Western Pacific yesterday cast of the bridge across the Jordan, which has just been erected by the road, and should the weather be favorable today the laying of steel will begin.

Final Survey Made.

The final survey of the road where it joins the Rio Grande main track on Sixth West, near the corner of First South, was completed yesterday. Everything is now in readiness for track-laying, and the reason this has been delayed so long is on account of the weather.

Tons of Steel Rails.

About 400 tons of steel ralls have been unloaded at the point where the laying of track will begin. Thes have been distributed from the Jordan up to Sixth West and a force of Greeks was at work yesterday. Much more material is en route and once the laying of steel is begun it will be vigorously carried forward until the fracklayers eatch up with graders, and the grade is now well o toward Garfield.

DEADLOCK AND WOOL

Buyers and Sellers Cannot Agree Upon a Price.

As yet there is nothing particularly exciting on the wool market. The clip being moved is that which was contracted for in advance, and otherwise the market is decidedly slow. There is a difference in price between the buyer and seller of from 4 to 6 cents; the former offers is cents and the latter is holding out for anything from 2 cents up to 25 cents. Hence the deadlock and consequent inactivity. Nor is there any immediate prespect of a settlement.

The London market on Monday showed considerable dirength, and this, of course, will make the market here more firm and strengthen the purpose of the seller.

OGDEN GRAFT CASES

Supreme Court Hears Arguments in Skeen-Craig Matter.

The Supreme court heard arguments on Tuesday in the case of J. D. Skeen against William Craig and the matter was taken under advisement. The case developed out of the alleged graft by members of the Ogden City Council. Skeen brought charges against Fred W. Chambers, charging him with receiving ullegal fees from the city, and when the case was tried the jury returned a verdict of guilty. The same charges were brought against Craig, but the jury in his case found in favor of the defendant. Skeen appealed the case to the Supreme court.
